Grandmaster Sin Thé has decided to teach the 42-posture 1st Road of the Shaolin Lost Tracking Fist form, so named because its peculiar direction changes cause your opponent to lose track of you. When you think it should turn right, instead it turns left. When you think it should move forward, it moves back. Although it is not clear when these forms were developed in the temple, they were known to be introduced by various traveling monks (Sanxi, Zexiang, & Suchow) to Shantung provinces from Henan Shaolin Temple during the early Ming Dynasty (~600 years ago). It did not become well known until Kou Yen Chia, Jet Li's character in the movie Fearless, used it to defeat the western muscle man in an infamous duel. We are offering a special price for kids (12 and under)! DVDs must be preordered and will be handed out at the seminar – no exceptions!
